The National Avalanche Foundation's (NAF) mission is to foster an effective exchange and sharing of information to enhance public safety and education regarding snow science, mountain safety and overall avalanche safety and mitigation. Its number one goal is to guarantee the existence of the National Avalanche School and works on behalf and in the best interests of ski areas, guide services, search and rescue organizations, and other agencies working with such entities. The NAF—a 501(c)(3) organization—was formed in 1982 to ensure the successful continuation of the NAS which is recognized as one of today's leading US professional avalanche education & training programs. The NAS is one of the country's longest running programs with roots that trace back to the 1950's United States Snow and Avalanche School held in Alta, Utah. Without the NAS, US avalanche programs lose the consistent, professional training and the information sharing it provides.
